After telling his "little shaver" stories, Uncle Stanley is caught at his favorite pastime while staying with the Fullers. Playing the role of Uncle Stanley is Tim Pigot.

Kevin Bartley, as Newton Fuller, uses a siphon of water to destroy the house again, Madge, Sharon Leville, and Steve, John Mitsos, rush in to announce that Raymond has fallen in the well.

Mr. Prescott, Al Cleek, drags Raymond, Ray Galati, back to the house after finding a dead skunk in his swimming pool.

A Christmas dance would not be complete without a santa, candy canes, and freshmen dressed as elves.

While drinking punch and eating cookies, Kathy Lascoty, Scott Smith, Tom Blankenbaker and Kim Bellafiore give their full attention to Mike Uremovich.

As other couples before them have already done, Dawn Schubick and Bob Miller prepare to add their names to Santa's List.

"Candycane and Mistletoe," Xmas dance

Presents under a tree adorned with candy canes, silver garland and red bulbs provide a scenic background for many couples who enjoy taking pictures.

Dancing being impossible, Linda Whitworth is content to watch the other couples.

Sophomore Debbie Lazorik proves that class spirit comes before anything, including a sprained wrist, Apes, knife-throwers and flame swallowers are circus acts that sophomores chose to use on their signs.

Taping red and blue paper to lockers and hanging signs are duties that must be done, but can be fun, as Hanging blue paper and silver stars to show the change from Hades to Heaven is junior Sue Baker.

Clowns and angels deck '72, '73 halls

Using a theme by Bill Cosby, junior Ray Galati has the entire gym laughing with his "Right."

Class of '71 shows it has the most spirit

Seniors Mike Hamang and Gene Christy find that many times it is necessary to stand on chairs and reach as high as possible to hang the many signs.

Black cats, ghosts, haunted houses and bats are just a few of the many objects that could be found to show that senior "Spirits Are High."

As punishment for thinking the Pirates would lose, senior Dan Nellessen has his head ducked in a bucket of water by Jerry Curtis and Mark Langbehn.

Christmas season opens with a concert

The flute section provides the high, yet sweet, tones necessary to make a song like "Silent Night" meaningful.

Barb Abel expresses herself in songs of Christmas.

Senior Salley Funkey leads pompom girl tin soldiers in their routine at the winter concert.

Members of the choir realize that in order to make "Hallelujah Chorus" sound the way it is intended, it is necessary to let the full sound out by opening the mouth widely.

New addition to Revue is a new director.

The band is represented by senior Penny Clements, junior Vicki Seller and sophomore Mary Ann Higgins.

Senior Marlyce Bielak turns her palms upward so the audience can identify with her interpretation of loneliness,

A Fine Arts Review presented on January 13 and 14 . . . the vocalteens singing a few of their favorites from 'Hello Dolly' . . . members of the school band playing instrumental ensembles . . a dramatic interpretation of the Salem Witch trials . . routine done by the girls gymnastic team . . art exhibits shown in the cafeteria . two skits put on by the Thespians . tour one stranded at sea . . the hilarious comedy, "The Goberville Stageline," . . entire school participates in two nights of deliabiful enterpriament.

Sophomore Cindy Wineinger uses facial expressions and hand gestures in "The Crucible."

Some songs from "Hello Dolly" with acts to aid the performance are new favorites that the traditional Vocalteens enjoy singing for audiences.

Junior squaw Ana Shooter gives a warning look to the villain, played by senior Ed Kasick, in the humorous one-act play, "The Gooberville Stage."

First-year director Mrs. Schmidt realizes that presenting a revue is both work and fun.

Sophs present first Children's Theatre

The Mathematician's wife, Sue Collins, and the Magician's wife, Mary Candaras plot the path for their husbands to take.

Tradition revived ... sophomores present "Many Moons" ... first play directed to-wards younger children ... February 19, 20, 21 ... sophomores participate ... castle ... court jester and nagging wives ... sad princess ... worried king ... plotting ministers ... princess wants the moon ... court jester understands and helps ... as all fairy tales, everyone lives happily ever after.

Extremely depressed and worried about his daughter the King, Dave Kensey, wonders what to do.

The lord chamberlain, Larry Johnson; the Magician, Ron Izynski; and the Mathematician, Don Pitman, discuss ways to outwit the court jester.

Makeup is put on heavily so it can be seen beyond the stage lights as shown on Kathy Lascoty.

As the disheartened princess, Eve Fink, walks in, the magician, Ron Izynski; his wife, Sally Collins; and the court jester, Mike Minard, watch in anticipation.

Juniors Linda Kloth and Kurk Kusmiz are just one of the many couples who enjoy dancing at the $\mbox{H-C}$ sockhop.

"Good luck team, good luck" is one of the many cheers that pepteens chant during j-v and varsity cames.

Between the two basketball games varsity and reserve cheerleaders combine in leading the school song.

Filled stands and cheering fans at H-C

Red, white and pink tissue paper ... wood frame ... hours of work ... MHS heart completed ... signs in halls ... Homecoming night ... mums for cheerleaders, queen candidates and parents ... excitement mounts as queen and Mr. Basketball are announced ... Salley Funkey and Ray Bulatovich reign ... a crown and an autographed basketball ... H-C participation ends with a sockhop sponsored by Medical Clareers.

Breaking the hoop to begin the H-C game is junior Jeff Krueger.

Sallie and Ray reign at '71 Basketball Homecoming

With roses in hand, Basketball Sweetheart Salley Funkey receives the traditional kiss from Mr. Basketball Ray Bulatovich.

Homecoming queen and Mr. Basketball candidates are: Dorthea Anastopoulos and Jim Bailey, Teresa Dennis and Ray Bulatovich, Salley Funkey and Gene Cristy, Kay Uremovich and Jim Markancek.

One of the highlights of the evening is senior Terrie Greek singing "Over the Rainbow."

Before entering the Prom itself, Barbara Karr and George Espravnik are announced by Mr.

An Eifel Tower adds a finishing touch

Dancing can be rather tiring, so sophomore Kathy Bannister and senior John Wood decide that chairs are just the thing for their tired feet.

While waiting in line for tickets, Rick Burdan gives Jana Kravecheno an admiring look.

While waiting for the King and Queen to finish their dance, other couples watch with wonder and admiration.

Flowers from one of the many French shops are wonderful souvenirs as Bruce Pilar, Nancy Nastoff, Jackie Kramer, and Stan Pozywio discover.

French scenery provides the ideal background for pictures taken by Pam Sailor and Mark Detert of Joan Dell and Steve Shalla.

While the other couples dance to a slow song, Ed Cheikh and Kathy Svetanoff prefer their own way of dancing.

Before being permitted to enter the dining area Diane Fossey, Steve Harris, Larry Vatterott and Salli Funkey have their names checked off by Mrs. Nickovich.

After four hours of dancing at Prom and three hours more at Post Prom senior Tom Mackey and sophomore April Brumley find it hard to stay awake.

Turkey or beef, potato and more are served to the hungry Post Prom goers who filled the many rows of tables.

Food, dance provided by Scherwood

Driving to Scherwood . . . guy removing garter . . charm given to girl, tietac to guy . . . dinner served . . World Column provides music . . . everyone participates . . . out to breakfast . . . weary Promgoers head for home for a few hours sleep.

After four hours of dancing at Prom and running in from the rain couples are anxious to get to Post Prom, but first they must check their coats.

Class of '71 gathers for the last time

A beginning and an end . . . parents standing as graduates walk by . . . speeches telling of past and future . . Mr. Meyne is guest speaker . . . receiving the diploma . . . parents taking numerous pictures . . . entire class participates by turning the tassels . . . class of 1971 now become alumni.

Salutatorian Eileen Bishop proudly accepts her diploma from Mr. Miller.

As parents and friends wait to take pictures of their favorite graduate, Donna Dilley receives her rose from junior Dawn Bailey.

As the high school band plays "Pomp and Circumstance," members of the class of 1971 assemble as a class for the final time.

Guest speaker Mr. Meyne finds it easy to keep the audience's attention.

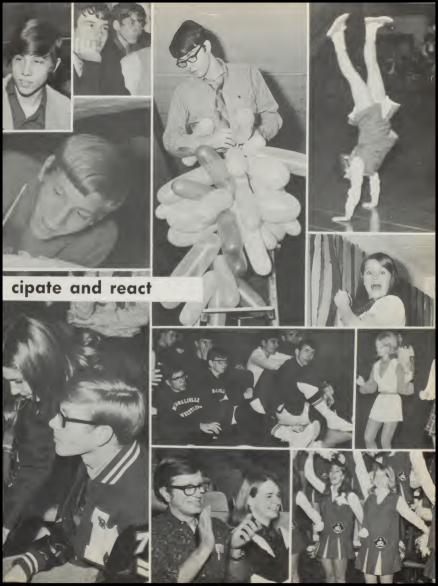

The past, including friends, sporting events and classes, is the topic of Valedictorian Kyle McKinley's speech.

Noisy confusion of monthly meetings... dues and constant bake sales to supplement depleted funds...elections and initiations part of business... banquets and field trips comprise fun ... sharing ideas, combining single attempts... aiming for mutual goals... working together with those who possess common interests ... compromising at times to gain desired end ... elements of a group effort... realizing that conformity leads to combined success...! of 'Evening in Paris' for Prom theme

Leading the Class of 1972 are Dale Pupillo, Vice-President; Marcie Foster, secretary; Denise Dunklau, treasurer; and Jeff Krueger, President.

Mrs. Kirtland, head sponsor of the junior class, laughs with junior Irene Denta.

Purple rainbow rings . . "Smooth Salling Over the Indian Ocean" . . . first place float . . "Give 'Em Hades" . . . devils and angels . . Prom work begins . . . candy sales . . "Evening in Paris" . . . Gir's and Boy's state . . "George Washington Slept Here" . . . college board tests . . two years over . . one year to go.

With a poster of Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid watching him, Greg Arts waits for the bell.

being the next graduating class at MHS

After a long hike, juniors Mark Hale, Debbie Devine, Sue Baker and Rick Tassef sit down to catch their breath while Rick discovers the sun coming out from the grey clouds.

Nick Tournis has quite a hearty appetite for lunch after his morning classes.

Working hard to make her first Prom a success, junior Anna Shooter concentrates on putting the base of a lamp post together.

Senior Class sponsor, Gerald Walters, shows his desire to make MHS a better place through his willingness to work on tedious projects.

Leading the Senior class through its last year are Cindy Maihofer, Secretary; Mike Hamang, President; Jim Bailey, V-President; Joan Milakovich, Treasurer.

Adam Anders is always willing to help a fellow classmate as he points the answer out to Jim Barbauld.

For every end there is said to be a beginning . . . the year 1970-71, both an end and a beginning . . . for sophomores, the beginning of a high school career . . . for juniors, the second stage of such a career . . . for seniors, the end of this career and the beginning of another . . . the year witnessed the last step prior to a venture into a new life . . . the final preparations before taking the step . . . what lies ahead? . . . more schooling, perhaps, or marriage, entry into the world of business, or military duty . . . taught by experience as well as by books, I am ready to accept the challenges presented by the future . . . anxious to confront what the world holds in the way of surprises, searching for the ultimate goal, seeking self-fulfillment, the greatest happiness . . . equipped with the necessary basics to meet and deal with both joy and disappointment . . . I WILL.

ADVISER Miss Janice Kirby

High school plays an important role in the development of the individual. It represents the stage in the development when emotions, ideas, and attitudes begin to formulate and establish themselves. Every activity engaged in during the three years of high school—whether mandatory or voluntary—is a determining factor in who "!" will become. As each such influence is so vital, none should be overlooked or underestimated.

This is precisely the purpose of our book: to show how the individual surfaces through contact with others and through involvement in the varied facets of high school life. As you page through this record of the year 1970-71, perhaps each aspect of this particular stage in the development of the individual "I" will become more prominent, more memorable.
